Called to Create

Entrepreneurship is not just a career path but a divine calling. In the beginning, God created. And when He formed us in His image, He placed within us the same ability to dream or envision and thereafter create. That's why ideas are stirred up within us and solutions keep us thinking often. We are made to build, solve and innovate.

However it is important to remember that all of these capacities in us must be steered and nurtured through deliberate learning and painstaking schooling. We do not dream but we master the art of envisioning and translating these dreams to tangibles through resourcefulness and hard work.

But Kingdom creativity is different from worldly ambition. It's not driven by ego, but by obedience. It's not fueled by greed, but by grace. You're not just creating for profit but you creating for purpose.

Your ability to see what doesn't exist yet and bring it to life is a sacred gift. Whether it's a product, a platform, or a process. When you steward it with humility and excellence, it becomes a blessing to the world.

Romans 11:29 reminds us that "the gifts and calling of God are irrevocable." That business idea in your heart? That service model that keeps tugging at your thoughts? That innovation you've been sitting on? They're not random. They're assignments.

Creation doesn't come without cost. There will be critics. There will be challenges. But the same God who called you will sustain you. Your role is to stay connected to Him, the ultimate Creator.

Don't bury your talent because of fear. Don't delay your step because of uncertainty. God doesn't call the qualified. He qualifies the called. Start with what you have, where you are, and trust Him with the increase.

So create with boldness. Build with love. Lead with vision. Your ideas are not just tools for success, they are bridges to transformation. And when surrenders, your creativity becomes prophecy in motion.
