Stewarding the Seed

Every idea, opportunity, and open door is a seed entrusted to you by God. As an entrepreneur, your role isn't just to harvest but to steward and midwife all that God has placed in your hands. In the parable of the talents, Jesus honored the servants who multiplied what they were given, not just those who kept it safe.

God doesn't give seed for storage; He gives seed for sowing. Your business is a field. Your effort, the cultivation. And His favor? The rain. We must remember that we have been called to be multipliers. Things must never stagnate in our hands.

The temptation in business is to hold too tightly, to protect at the expense of progress. But Kingdom stewardship looks like faithful risk. It looks like using your resources to serve, to employ, to bless and not just to build empires, but to expand God's Kingdom.

Every client interaction, every product design, every social media post is a chance to sow excellence, integrity, and grace. People might not always remember your pitch, but they'll never forget how you made them feel.

You may not see the harvest immediately. But in God's economy, no good seed sown in faith ever returns void. Galatians 6:9 reminds us, "Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up."

Steward the slow seasons with the same passion as the peak ones. God is just as present in the planting as He is in the harvesting. What you build in secret, He will bless in the open.

Your seed is significant. Water it with prayer. Fertilize it with excellence. Let God bring the increase.
